

Knowledge is beautiful.

Researchers at the Edwards School of Business and the International Centre for Northern Governance and Development are using participatory research methods to improve understanding of the past, current and evolving states of the entrepreneurial ecosystem in northern geographical areas, as it relates to social and economic capacity building.

In other words, U of S researchers are working with northern communities to find new ways for them to overcome challenges and seize opportunities, to create a better life for the people who live and work there.

usask.ca