

"Rethinking Alcohol and Drugs: Global Transformations /Local Practices in History"

Alcohol and Drugs History Society (ADHS), Conferencia bi-anual
Mexico City, June 15 -17 2022

ADHS Program

June 15-17, 2022

Instituto de Investigaciones Sociales,
Mario de La Cueva, C.U., 04510
Ciudad de México, CDMX, México

¡Bienvenidos! Welcome!

The ADHS is proud to host its first meeting ever in wonderful Mexico City—La Ciudad de México. Latin America has always been an important origin and exporter of intoxicants, hallucinogens, licit and illicit psychoactive drugs, and many varieties of alcohols—from pulque to pisco. The Americas lie at a crossroads of ideas, drug products, and policy decisions that flow in every direction, with striking global consequences. It has always played an essential role in our understanding of intoxicants, from drug practices to drug policy. Thus, Mexico is ideally situated as a venue for the Alcohol and Drugs History Society's 2022, biennial conference. Following on the success of the 2019 ADHS meeting in Shanghai, the Mexico City conference will broaden scholarly networks and enhance our timely research and writing on the history of drugs and alcohol, bringing together researchers from across the world.

The ADHS wishes to thank the following people and organizations that helped to organize this conference: Erika Dyck (Program Committee chair) and committee members Carlos A. Pérez Ricart, José Domingo Schievenini, Haggai Ram, and James T. Bradford; the inaugural William J. Rorabaugh Book Prize Committee (Isaac Campos and Miriam Kingsberg Kadia); and Cecilia Autrique and Alejandra Puente for their remarkable work with local Mexico City arrangements. We also acknowledge our kind sponsors: Raúl Escalante, VP Legal & Corporate Affairs, Grupo Modelo, Alfonso Mojica, Director General, Cámara Nacional de Industria Tequilera, Oscar del Cueto, CEO, Kansas City Mexico. We want to especially thank our venerable host institution, La Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México (UNAM), including Dr. Miguel Armando López Leyva, Director, El Instituto de Investigaciones Sociales-UNAM; Dr. Luis Astorga Almanza, Instituto de Investigaciones Sociales-UNAM; and Dra. Guadalupe Valencia García, Coordinadora de Humanidades, UNAM.

¡Gracias! Obrigado! Thank you all coming to Mexico City!—

Paul Gootenberg, President, ADHS, 2021-23

Intoxicating Histories

Series Editors: Virginia Berridge and Erika Dyck

Whether on the street, off the shelf, or over the pharmacy counter, interactions with drugs and alcohol are shaped by contested ideas about addiction, healing, pleasure, and vice and their social dimensions. Books in this series explore how people around the world have consumed, created, traded, and regulated psychoactive substances throughout history. The series connects research on legal and illegal drugs and alcohol with diverse areas of historical inquiry, including the histories of medicine, pharmacy, consumption, trade, law, social policy, and popular culture. Its reach is global and includes scholarship on all periods. Intoxicating Histories aims to link these different pasts as well as to inform the present by providing a firmer grasp on contemporary debates and policy issues. We welcome books, whether scholarly monographs or shorter texts for a broad audience focusing on a particular phenomenon or substance, that alter the state of knowledge.

McGill-Queen's welcomes inquiries from authors. If you have a project that you think might fit into these series, we invite you to visit our website or contact acquisition editors, Richard Baggaley at richard.baggaley.mqup@mcgill.ca or Kyla Madden at kyla.madden@mcgill.ca.
